National Literacy and Numeracy Week 2007 Award

The 2007 National Literacy and Numeracy Week Award was achieved in recognition of the school's effective delivery of literacy practices.

The need to improve student literacy outcomes resulted in a whole school plan which addressed the professional development of teachers. Using Education Queensland's Literacy Futures – Reading as a starting point, teachers explored effective ways of teaching diverse students, utilising print and multi-literacies to be effective learners.

Teachers demonstrated substantial pedagogical repertoire to cater for different learning needs, abilities and interests of students, and regular moderation of assessment tasks.
